

Esquire

Andyman's Treehouse – Columbus, OH

By Joe Oestreich

You're Having: Way more than you'd planned

As with everything worth seeing in Ohio, you won't stumble upon Andyman's. Somebody will take you to this stack of cinder blocks at the corner of two alleys. You'll think it looks like your drunk uncle's rumpus room -- if your drunk uncle had a fifty-foot, hundred-year-old silver maple growing out of his floor and up through the ceiling. The trunk is ten feet around and strung with Christmas lights. Not one word is carved into the bark. The beer's cheap, so you'll order High Lifes two at a time. Then you'll plant yourself next to the tree. Both of you right at home.